Media Information Release

Date: Beginning May 17, 2010
Topic: Implementation of CourtView
Location: Southeast Alaska

Beginning on May 17, 2010, the Alaska Court System in Ketchikan will be converted to a new computer system called CourtView.

One of the many benefits of CourtView is that it allows defendants, who intend to plead no contest, to pay minor offense tickets and criminal fines, surcharges and other costs on line at www.courtrecords.alaska.gov/ep/.

Officers will be handing out business-size cards listing the court's web address for electronic payment to violators who are cited.

For more information, contact the Ketchikan Police Department at 225-6631.

All charges reported in this media release are only accusations.
All defendants are presumed innocent until proven guilty.
